Who to Blame: Proportionate Liability under Victorian Legislation

- The crucial question: have wrongdoers caused 'the same damage'?
- Strategic considerations: framing pleadings and joining parties
- Running a trial: practical issues to bear in mind

The Victorian 'proportionate liability' legislation has been in operation for over five years. Yet legal principles embodied in the legislation are still being settled and practising in this area remains as challenging as ever.

This seminar presents an opportunity to join with a panel of eminent speakers to consider the complex legal and practical aspects of dealing with claims involving proportionate liability under Victorian legislation.

Chair

Justice Elizabeth Hollingworth, Supreme Court of Victoria

Presenters

Justice Geoffrey Nettle, Court of Appeal, Supreme Court of Victoria, will speak on key legal principles embodied in the proportionate liability regime

Mr Chris Caleo SC, the Victorian Bar, will speak on how to approach the challenges of a trial involving proportionate liability claims
